ITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

The End of the Game.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

The letter accompanying the list of more than 200 homes stated that if the Commissioners desired it the list of free homes to which children had been sent would be furnished immediately.

Chairman W. W. Millan of the board of children's guardians appropried to Behind a tree darted the most frightened little Wood Mouse in all the great world. How he did hope that Buster Bear hadn't seen him! But Buster Bear had and he was after that little Wood Mouse in an instant little Mouse saw it and turned suddenly toward it. That sudden turn was all that saved him. As it was, one of Buster's big paws almost landed on the end of his tail. Around the end of the old log ran the little Wood Mouse. It was a big long and by keeping close to it the

Marines at Gettysburg Await

Zero Hour to Enact Bat tle for Hardings.

The marines at Gettysburg today await the zero hour to begin their reproduction of the famous charge of Gen. Pickett for the benefit of President and Mrs. Harding and the members of their party, who are scheduled to arrive at the Gettysburg battle field shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Word has been received here that elaborate plans have been made for the reception of the presidential Why didn't that terrible giant come? With his eyes tight shut the little Mouse waited and waited. But Buster Bear didn't come. Little by little hope grew in the heart of the little Mouse. Could it be that he had been too swert for that terrible little Mouse. Could it be that he had been too smart for that terrible giant? He recovered his breath. Little by little he grew less tired. All the time he kept perfectly still. It must be that he had given that black giant the slip. The little Mouse began to think well of himself. He began to think that he had been very smart.

Movie Show Tonight.

It is planned to present tonight a big "movie show" on the battle field, the feature of which will be views of the marines in action since they left Quantico, Va. The pictures will include also the views of the reception accorded the marine outfit by the President in the White House grounds just before they started on their march to Gettysburg. Band concerts and a demonstration by the aircrafts will feature the evening's entertaingular church services church services church services.

It is planned to present tonight a giant the silp. The must be gan to think well of himself. He began to think that he had been very smart.

Presently he caught queer sounds from the direction where he had last seen. Buster Bear. Somehow they did not sound angry, like the noises he had heard before. They were little grunts and whines. If the little Mouse had only known it they were little grunts and whines of pleasure. But he didn't know it and presently he decided that it would be best to get as cided that it would be best to get as grunts and whines of pleasure. But he didn't know it and presently he decided that it would be best to get as far from there as he could. So, peeping out to make sure that no one was watching him, he took to his heels and ran again. And all the time he was running he kept thinking how smart he had been.

Now the truth is that little Mouse hadn't been smart at all. He had been lucky. That was it—he had been lucky. You see when Buster Bear had pulled over that old log behind which the little Mouse had darted he had uncovered a great nest of ants, for ants dearly love to make there nests under old logs. Now the instant Buster Bear saw those ants he forgot all about the little Mouse. Buster is very fond of ants. With his long tongue he began to lick them up. It was then that he grunted and whined with pleasure. He was quite as well satisfied to have those ants as he would have been to have caught that little Mouse. Buster stayed right there until there wasn't another ant to lick up. Then, feeling very goodnatured, he shuffled off and forgot all about the little Wood Mouse.

In Memoriam.

BUIE. In loving remembrance of my dear husband, DANIEL J. BUIE. who departed this life three years ago today, July 1, 1919. Surrounded by friends I am lonesome. In the midst of pleasure I am blue A smile on my face and a heartache, Always thinking of you. BY-HIS DEVOTED WIFE AND DAUGHTER.

DELANEY, Sacred to the memory of our father, ROBERT DELANEY, Sr., who fell asleep in the arms of Jesus fifteen years ago today, July 1, 1907. Can we help but feel so lonely
When his voice we do not hear;
For no words were ever sweeter
Than the words he spoke to us?

HETTENKEMER. In sad but loving remem brance of my dear and devoted mother ANNIE E. HETTENKEMER (nee Neurath), who entered into perfect rest six years ago today, July 1, 1916.

Never shall I cease to love thee,
Never shall I cease to love thee,
Never shall thy memory fade;
Sweetest thoughts forever linger
Around the grave where thou art laid.
HER DEVOTED DAUGHTER CATHERINE.

KING. In loving remembrance of our dear wife and mother, MRS. LULA M. KING, who left us one month ago today, June 1, 1922.

Days of sadness still come o'er us, Secret tears do often flow, But memory keeps you near us Though 4rou died one month ogo. HER HUSBAND, HAZEL AND LIMA. MADDEN. In loving memory of our dear fa-ther, WILLIAM MADDEN, who died six years ago today, July 1, 1916.

We can picture happy greetings,
Round the fireside long ago,
And we think of tearful partings,
When they left us here below.

SMITH. In loving remembrance of our beloved daughter. THELMA LOUISE SMITH, who left us one year ago today, July 1, 1821.

Our life is but a fading dawn.

Its glorious noon, how quickly past!

Lead us, O Christ, when all is gone,

Safe home at last,

HER LOVING FATHER AND MOTHER. SMITH. Sacred to the memory of my dear friend, THELMA L. SMITH, who died one year ago today, July 1, 1921. There is a link that death cannot sever, Love and remembrance live forever.

In Memoriam.

SMITH. In sad but loving remembrance of our dear niece. THELMA LOUISE SMITH, who departed this life one year ago today, July 1, 1821. "No trembling, sad farewell
From her quivering lips was heard;
So softly she crossed that the quiet stream
Was not by a ripple stirred.
She was spared the parting of tears,
She was spared the mortal strife;
It was scarcely dying—she only passed
In a moment to endless life.

"So low was her Master's call That it did not reach our ears But she heard the sound and

The sudden and strange ordight.
She felt as she met her Envior's smile.
And walked with Him in white.
Weep not, for her toils are o'er.

Safely, safely gathered in.
Far from sorrow, far from sin,
No more earthly griefs or lears.
No more earthly griefs or lears.
No more sudness, no more tears;
For the life so young and fair
Now hath passed from earthly care;
God Himself the soui will keep,
Giving His beloved sleep.

SPARSHOTT. A tribute of love and devotion

SPARSHOTT. A tribute of love and devotion to the memory of my dear son, SAMUEL ROBERT SPARSHOTT, who departed this life five years ago today, July 1, 1917.

Out in life's garden where sympathy grew, God planted a soul, 'twas the soul of you Life's wonderful gardener love seeking went through. went through, Till he found a heart, it was the heart of you.

I have sought through life's garden of roses and yew,
And I found one sweet blossom, all jeweled

Love, sympathy, faith all unchanging and true, And the heart of my flower, dear son, it And the heart of my flower, dear son, it was you.

Surrounded by friends I am lonesome in the midst of pleasure I am blue.

A smile on my face and a heartache.

Dear Robble I am always thinking of you.

ONE WHO WILL NEVER FORGET HIM AS LONG AS LIFE LASTS. HIS LONE LY MOTHER.

TAYLOR. Sacred to the memory of Mrs. ROBERTA TAYLOR, wife of Rev. W. A. Taylor, pastor of the Florida Avenue Esptist Church.

The angels of death hovered around our dear

The angels of death hovered around our dear The angels of death horered around our dear sister

And stole her away two years ago today. We loved her, but God loved her best. Safely, safely gathered in, Far from sorrow, far from ain; No more sadness, no more tears, For the life so sweet and fair, Now hath passed from earthly care; God Himself the soul will keep, Glving His beloved sieep.

There are friends, steadfast and true,
Yet none to understand and love like you.
Though in mortal flesh you are not here,
Oh, mother, I ever feel your spirit near.
H. CLINTON TAYLOR. TAYLOR, In loving temembrance of my dear mother, ROBERTA TAYLOR, who died July 1, 1920.

Dear mother, I know you've gone to rest, I loved you, but God loved you best. DR. WILLIAM E. TAYLOR, Greenville, N. C. N. C.
TURNER. In sad but loving remembrance of my dear mother, EVELYN J. TURNER, who departed this life five years ago today,
July 1, 1917.

A host of friends and kindred, toe.
We have to love each other;
But on this earth God gives to each
Of us just one dear mother,
She it is who first must hear
Of unexpected pleasure;
Rejoiching with us and her joy
Makes full the heaping measure.
The first to comfort in distress. The first to comfort in distress.

The one to whom our sorrow
Brings keenest pain and then again,
Reminds us of "tomorrow."

We learn to lean upon her work.

Her wisdom guides and strengthens.

Our character in youth and brings
Reward as time is lengthened. And then the time to us must come.
When Mother's hands are folded;
To us the dearest, fairest hands
The Master Sculptor molded.
The angels kiss the loving eyes
And close the white-fringed keepe

The pulseless breast is now at rest God keep the silent sleeper. God keep the silent sleeper.

But let's not think of her as dead,
Just waiting, over yonder,
In that fair land, with loving hand,
That "sunshine land" of wonder.
We'll see her smile again some day.
His promise still rings true—
I'll go, and stay a little while
Then I'll come back for you.

HER LONELY DAUGHTER RUTH.
